MARCH 28, 2010 | PASSION (PALM) SUNDAY

Christ Jesus, though he was in the form of God, did not regard equality with God, something to be grasped. Rather, he emptied himself, taking the form of a slave, coming in human likeness; and found human in appearance, he humbled himself, becoming obedient to the point of death, even death on a cross.

From Our Chaplain:

Dear JFK Community, Travelers and Visitors to Our Chapel,

We are beginning the most holy of all weeks. For some of you, it will be a week just like many other weeks: busy, tiresome, stressful and filled with work. For others it will be week of traveling distances, sometimes through many time zones, cultures and climates. Still for others it will be a week of silence, deep reflection, reconciliation and meditation.

Where will you be?

Maybe you will be lucky enough to take part in some of the liturgical celebrations, maybe you will meditate in your room or in your own way; maybe you will feel the urge to attend the Mass on Sunday, or maybe because of your bad experiences or memories, or due to the Church's declining credibility you will want to stay away from anything organized...

No matter where will you be, where will you find yourself physically, mentally, emotionally and spiritually one thing remains the same, unchanged, mysterious and hopeful: He will be hanging there, nailed to the cross, out of love. There is nothing you or anybody else can do about it. Even if the Church disappeared from the face of the earth, it would not change a thing about His love and dedication.

That's what happens when you deal with love. That's what happens when such love is beaten, hurt, or meant to be dead: such love never stops. Never.

So, no matter where your life takes you in these days,

He will be there,

hanging on the cross,
out of love.

*Fr. Chris Piasta, OFM
Chaplain*
